

New examples of restoration and correction of the psycho-spiritual balance in patients

A.V. Shornikov, E.N. Shornikova (LLC
"KITTIInteriorS", Moscow, Russia)

At last year's Conference, we introduced you to small episodes from our accompanying practice of restoring and correcting mental and spiritual balance in a group of patients.

Currently, they are all in good health, and some of them have shown pleasant changes in social terms, and now we only occasionally control this group, rejoicing and surprised at the results of correctly selected bioresonance and frequency therapy, for which I would like to separately thank the company "IMEDIS", which produces wonderful devices and provides us with great moral support.

However, continuing to study the influence of the interior on a person, we continued to meet with new families and, accordingly, with new "case histories."

For example, in February 2006, a patient K. came to us, who less than three years ago independently repaired a new apartment and moved into it with her husband and two growing up boys, respectively, 10 and 5 years old at the time of the visit. Three years ago it was a prosperous and happy family, while the financial situation of her husband allowed our patient not to work, devoting all the time to the house and children (this, in part, was the reason that she did the repair and design herself, without consulting specialists) ...

Unexpectedly for everyone, almost immediately after the housewarming, the internal climate in the family changed, the relationship between the spouses became somewhat tense, and over time, the husband began to regularly stay at work, actually stopped spending time with his family and children, and took into the habit of taking alcoholic drinks at home late at night. high quality, but in unlimited quantities.

K.'s relatives and friends advised her to contact our coordination center and try to find a way out of this situation.

From the very first meeting it became clear that in this case it was impossible to carry out the usual treatment according to the "interior therapy®" method, since the apartment had just been renovated, and in this situation, the patient would not be able to agree with her husband about additional financing of any interior changes.

Therefore, we used, as in the previously described cases, only the devices at our disposal "IMEDIS-BRT-A" and "MINIEKSPERT-DT".

In the first two sessions, the patient categorically did not talk about the main problem - her husband's betrayal and his relationship with another woman, which had been going on for more than a year and a half, but tried to explain the change in family relationships by the bad behavior of children, and at first there was a need for a special and delicate therapy, which we carried out, already confidently applying the inversion of the negative psychoemotional state.

After the general mood of the patient improved somewhat, that allowed her to become more frank, we were able to start correcting a real life situation.

We were guided by the fact that a person is a very complex system of oscillatory circuits and is in constant spatial search among people, animals or objects and phenomena of the surrounding world of precisely those systems that cause him a state of harmonic resonance.

But over time, a person somehow experiences certain external and internal vibrational influences ("shaking"), in connection with which his amplitude-frequency characteristics change ("dynamized"), and this ultimately leads to a violation of the harmonic state, to disharmonic resonance, conflict and even destruction.

Accordingly, in this case, we used the amplitude-frequency harmonization of the personality as a therapeutic technique.

At the first stage, new internal and external images of K. were formed, which allowed her to believe in herself, in her strength, and to cope with the depressive state in which she had been constantly for several months.

At the second stage, we carried out work on correcting the husband's behavior in the family and prepared several energy-informational preparations, which K. added at home to drinking water and alcoholic beverages.

The result of this work, which lasted from February to April, was on the part of the husband a decrease in alcohol consumption in the evenings in the presence of children, as well as his sincere confession to his wife about the presence of another woman on the side, while he categorically did not want to leave his family and asked for time. think.

In May, we suggested to our patient to change the methodology to a deeper and more serious one, aimed precisely at keeping her husband in the family. But this required additional internal work from K., which she refused and went to rest with the children for the whole summer, effectively stopping the treatment.

As expected, at the end of the summer, the husband proposed to K. to divorce, while he claimed half of the entire property, in fact, taking away living space from young children.

Accordingly, at the end of August, we began a completely new stage of K.'s treatment so that the divorce process ended successfully and caused a minimum of trouble.

We conducted a special therapy that relieved our client's attacks of despair, and as a result, K. had a decision to gain financial independence from her spouse and find a job.

In addition, measures were taken to create a new internal image of K. - a mother, who bears financial responsibility for the future of her children, and, guided by this image, our client was able to sign a competent divorce contract with her husband.

In November, the couple officially divorced, and our patient by this time had completed special short-term professional training courses and went to work, where in a few months she proved herself to be an excellent specialist.

K.'s new image, her good mood and success in the service did not go unnoticed by the men.

The ex-husband began to visit children surprisingly regularly and spends quite a lot of time with them, and at the same time our patient is regularly shown signs of attention by the men around her, and this suggests that her personal life will certainly improve.

A.V. Shornikov, E.N. Shornikova New examples of restoration and correction of mental and spiritual balance in female patients // XIII

"IMEDIS", 2007, v.2 - C.342-345