About a year and a half ago, we began to study the features of the use of homeopathic medicines derived from rare earth metals.
- lanthanides. Probably, many doctors who have seen or held in their hands the third book of Jan Scholten is interested in its beautiful title: "Mysterious Lanthanides"! And so, in the fall of 2008, we began to study how rare, mysterious and unusual they are?

Even in the last century, these metals were called rare, unusual, but modern scientists call this group of metals "scattered". Indeed, one of the paradoxes is that there are no large deposits of these metals. The maximum amount of these elements was found in tundra soils - up to 0.5%. And some plants, such as hickory nuts, contain up to 2.5% lanthanides.

However, it is worth giving such examples: in the earth's crust, Cerium contains 5 times more than lead and 250 times more than silver! And dysprosium is almost 5 times more than tungsten.

It is interesting to note that almost everyone in modern life has had contact with lanthanides. After all, they are used in photography, in glass polishing, in oil refining, in the production of plastics, artificial fibers, in leather tanning and even in every lighter! And also in dentistry, oncology, hematology and dermatology.

With this "frequent" contact of most people with a group of these metals, there is no doubt that the use of lanthanides will have great prospects in medical practice according to homeopathic canons.

I would like to note that lanthanides have a harmonizing effect on the emotional state of a person. That is, with a lack of determination, it reasonably increases, and with excessive reactivity, it smoothes out. A person becomes more harmonious in his environment, experiences fewer negative emotions, and, therefore, gets less sick. After all, this is precisely what we must strive for.

Treatment with lanthanides can be compared to the automatic adjustment of the body to the carrier frequency of life (like the AFC in a radio). A person begins to more accurately understand what he needs in this life and how to do it.

Since at the seminar last year, our esteemed colleague from Austria N. Kempe highlighted the theoretical part of the topic of the use of lanthanides very well, we will present only some of our practical results.

When should special attention be paid to this group, i.e. in the treatment of which diseases lanthanides are most effective:

1. Correction of psycho-emotional state.
2. Immunity disorders.

3. Allergies.
4. Infertility.
5. Vascular disorders.

During the collection of anamnesis, assessing the emotional state of the patient, we recommend paying special attention to the significance of some "topics" for the patient. That is, "clues" to the search for drugs from this group can be both complete denial and a detailed frank story on the following topics:

1. Paradoxical fears. They are usually of moderate intensity, temporarily compensated, depressed (cornered), but sometimes they suddenly "emerge" with deep bitterness and regret. For example: a great desire to change jobs, but fear of losing even the unsettling one that is now; change an old car, but a new one can be "knocked"; go to another university, but this is where the second course ends; move to another city, but there are so many "memorable" pages from a past life ...

2. Conscience. An "act" was made, though positive, though negative, but the person cannot tell about it. He does not know how to cope with hidden emotions, and they weigh him down. There is no catharsis.

3. Power. Power both gained and lost, as gained legal, and contrary to the law, the excessive dream of power or complete anarchy.

4. Long-term absence of dreams.

The dominance of these themes in the anamnesis should suggest the need to search for a drug from the lanthanide group to correct the psychoemotional state.

From physical symptoms, diseases such as thyroiditis, infertility, menopause, diabetes, allergies, autoimmune diseases, hypercoagulable states in such vascular diseases as thrombophlebitis, endarteritis, atherosclerosis can serve as a "signal" for testing lanthanides.

Here are some of our recommendations for the use of lanthanides:

1. It is safer to focus on recovery when testing measuring level, i.e. test not directly, but through some global pointers. When tested directly in a patient with a low energy status, it is easy to obtain the effect of reducing the measurement level due to the "depletion" of the point.

2. Since the application of these drugs refers to constitutional treatment, then test them better connected with through pointers, all layers and structures of the body.

3. It is promising to search for drugs in this group and through pointers disorders of immunity.

4. Through the nosodes specific diseases better conduct differential diagnosis and recheck yourself at the end of the selection of the drug, rather than start the search for a drug from this group.

5. After a single dose of the selected drug in the initial potency, which is inherent in APK "Imedis", the next dose of the drug begins to be tested only on the 5-7th day. That is, in C30 with "chronic" states to take lanthanides more often than 1 time a week does not make sense.

6. The agro-industrial complex has the ability to test the frequency spectrum of lanthanides, but there are no salts of these metals in the "frequencies". Since in our research we received such data that not "pure" metals are tested much more often, but their salts, we consider it more reasonable to carry out testing directly from the table of D.I. Mendeleev.

7. The table has a great opportunity to test the whole group salts of this lanthanide at the same time, which significantly speeds up the process of finding the necessary drug.

8. In most cases, the body gives a good response to only one lanthanide or its salt.

9. With the right choice, lanthanide therapy usually does not cause exacerbations.

It is important to note this detail. Most of the patients taking lanthanides noted an "influx" of productive emotional reactions: for example, they decided to take a different path from work, "came across" a travel agency, remembered that they had not been on vacation for 3 years and decided to book vouchers, or accidentally entered a bookstore and I saw a book with an unusual title, opened it, and there ... exactly the answers that I had been looking for for a long time.

Also, for any psychologist and doctor, oriented in homeopathy, the "topic" of dream analysis is very interesting. After all, some patients say that they have not been seen for years. But when they begin to take a precisely selected lanthanoid, they come to the next appointment and begin to tell: "I haven't seen dreams for 3-4 years, and then suddenly such" pictures ", such" serials "begin to" show "every night!" And they give out such a mass of valuable and previously hidden symptoms for the analysis of the psycho-emotional state that only have time to write down, compare and think about which drug for constitutional correction needs to be tested and prescribed.

Since in the search by keyword, the software of APK "IMEDIS" does not analyze the symptoms of lanthanides, we hope that by the next conference this small nuance will be easily corrected.

In conclusion, we want to say the following: if our present is the result of how and what we thought in the past, then we create our future by how and what we think now. And if today we help a person change negative thoughts about ever-growing problems, about the inevitability of chronic diseases and poor health, into such positive ones as a secure life, the absence of serious diseases and harmonious relations with the world around us, then we are removing not past and present diseases, but we help to be healthy and happy in the future!

Lanthanides are very promising drugs for mild and rational psychocorrection.
